

Bringing in the Dolphins

Items Needed:

Icon or picture of Mother - I used Yemaya

Stones - Moon stone (for Goddess and female energy), and any or all of the following: coral, pearls (I used a string of pearls), clear quartz with a rainbow (can symbolize dolphin), chrysocolla, green aventurine, amazonite, or any blue-green stone to symbolize ocean and expression.

Candles - White for Mother, blue (and/or silver) for dolphins and the ocean.

Shells from the ocean or those you have at home.

Pen and paper for writing desires / intentions.

Ritual:

With prayerful intention, collect shells and any other natural gifts from the shore, and dip some water out of the ocean.

Set up your patio or outside altar with your shells, icon, stones and candles (place your candles in glass containers or something that will help them stay lit outdoors if the wind is high), and light your candles. Keep in mind that you will be leaving these candles unattended for a while, so take precautions.

Call your circle, inviting Mother Yemaya to join you. Call in any of your loving helpers and guides to join you in raising your energy.

Invocation:

Blessed Mother, Bringer of Abundance,

Sing the song of the Deep to us.

The riches of the Ocean belong to You,

And you give generously to your daughters.

Send us your dolphins, Bright Mother,

Our siblings who bring us joy and the dance of life.

We bare our souls to your messengers, knowing they

Will deliver to you our love and intentions.

So Mote it Be.

Write your intentions and desires on a scrap of paper and sit with it for a few moments. Place a few drops of ocean water over your heart chakra and visualize your energy being surrounded by shells of light; feel your vibration rise. Take your piece of paper and return to the ocean.

Walk into the water as far as you are comfortable. Raise your arms in praise of Yemaya and sway in the water. Bring the dolphins in close to you with your intention and your raised vibration. Then release your written intentions and dreams into the ocean, knowing the dolphins will take your desires into the deep.

Give thanks. Walk out of the water, onto the sand, and ground. Go back to your altar, open the circle, and have a meal and celebrate your abundance!
